- 8> Koalas are a form of...?
- 9> Which of these animals allows only one side of the brain to sleep at a time - Dogs, Bears or Dolphins?
- 10> How many species of flamingos have been discovered?

Answers:

- 1> The Scarlet Kingsnake - The scarlet kingsnake is a red snake with black and yellow rings. It looks almost exactly like the coral snake, which is very poisonous.
- 2> Gorilla - Pandas and Hamsters have tails. Gorillas, on the other hand, do not! Just like us, they have a tailbone (a coccyx) but they do not actually have a tail.
- 3> Over 1 month - Sometimes they can go even longer! They are able to store the nutrients for a long time so they do not have to eat as frequently!
- 4> 2 months - The correct answer is about 63 days or around 2 months! Most wolves only breed once per year.
- 5> A Murder - Ravens are one of the smartest birds out there!
- 6> Clear - The fur appears white because the clear follicles scatter light.
- 7> 2 feet - It weighs about 20 pounds.

8> Marsupial - They have a pouch and their babies are called joeys.

9> Dolphins - They allow only one side to sleep so that they can still breathe and swim.

10> 6 - There have only been six species of flamingos discovered. They can be found in Europe, South America, Africa and the Middle East.
