14> Woo-hoo! What Blur song, written and recorded in less than 15 minutes as a warm-up, was a huge hit, but made 20 times as much money from licensing?

15> Inspired by the movie The Gods Must Be Crazy, what Sacramento dance-punk band adopted a name that makes them nearly un-Google-able?

Answers:

1> LMFAO - Party rockers in the house tonight. Everybody just have a good time.

2> Billie Joe Armstrong - A flight attendant ordered him to pull his pants up.

3> We Built This City - He had another big hit a few months later with 'These Dreams' by Heart.

4> Paper Planes - The cash registers were okay, though.

5> Drake - His black father was a drummer for Jerry Lee Lewis.

6> John Williams - Barbara Gruska and Ethan Gruska are siblings.

7> Queen - The last album released while Freddie Mercury was still alive was called Innuendo.

8> Miley Cyrus - Most members of the Cyrus family got that tattoo.

9> I Will Always Love You - Although you know the Whitney Houston version, it was actually written by Dolly Parton. John Doe from the punk band X also performs it in the movie as a pop tune.

10> Rick Astley - The song was Never Gonna Give You Up.

11> Quiet Riot - Engineer Duane Baron recorded it on the first take with no rehearsal, and the drummer improvised as he went along.

12> T-Pain - The T stands for Tallahassee and refers to his difficulties growing up.

13> Foo Fighters - The stations detected a 'strong low frequency' in the tremors that corresponded to the highs and lows of the music.

14> Song 2 - Named because it was the second cut on the album, it was used extensively in ads and in stadiums. The band did turn down the US Army, though.

15> !!! - It is pronounced Chik-Chik-Chik
